

The Island School

EDUCATORS CONFERENCE

The Island School provides transformative, place-based experiences centered around education, research, and innovation. With a focus on conservation, sustainability, and education informed by world-class research, we develop responsible citizens and future leaders who can ensure a more sustainable future for our planet. While many participants in our Educators Conference are most familiar with our High School Semester and Summer Term, we also run a middle school, elementary school, and many short courses all united by common threads of our educational model.

We invite teachers, administrators, college counselors, and others in the education field to step outside of the traditional classroom and join us for this week-long, immersive professional development program. At the conference, you'll work and learn side by side with others across our community, experience our program through the lens of our students, and share ideas and innovations to expand the field of experiential learning.

Program Highlights:

- Share ideas on how to assess student learning with experiential education
- Re-energize through the sense of wonder that comes from hands-on learning
- Learn about The Island School educational philosophy and teaching models
- Study place-based projects and curriculum initiatives that have lasting outcomes

Program Objectives:

- Be familiar with The Island School programs, curriculum, and teaching methods
- Understand how sense of place builds curriculum mastery
- Value discovery-based, open-ended learning experiences
- Be part of a network of like-minded educators with resources for future curriculum development
